

RETRIAL MAY LEAD TO REIMBURSEMENT

BY PEYTON WEIXELMAN, JOSH KHANG, AND DANIEL PARK
Writers for The Delegate

Monday's trial between the Department of Humanities and Powell County took an unexpected turn leaving many confused about what would happen next; the court ruled with no charges against Powell and a possibility for reimbursement to all other counties due to a certain added policy for the Department.

After speaking with Humanities member, Kyser Meininger, the Delegate was able to get an understanding on the mood inside the Department.

"We definitely want to win, but I would just like to squash the beef between us," Meininger stated.

"...I don't think that we had a very fair trial the first time."

Kyser Meininger

Meininger also gave his opinion on the first trial and hopes for a more fair trial than the original. A fair trial will presumably bring a proper solution to the situation and satisfy the disgruntled Department.

STATERS learn the ins and outs of their departmental roles. Photo Credit Isaac Stark

"It kind of depends on the trial because I don't think that we had a very fair trial the first time," Meininger said.

While the Department tries to move in a positive direction, they want to do so as quickly as possible. The trial has had a huge impact on the Humanities department early in the week, and the department hopes to move forward and focus on more issues other than the court case.

Both sides of the court case have agreed that the court case has dragged on too long. Powell county even suggested gaining compensation for wasted time according to County Council member Travis Babcock.

The retrial with real judges finished with a verdict open to a series of possibilities. The added policy stated that any grants given to a county for education would have to replicated for all counties. The plan was suggested by the Department and further evaluation was deemed necessary to provide a valid interpretation of the added policy. Another trial to settle this issue may be needed.

Minority Leader Enforces House Loyalties

BY PEYTON WEIXELMAN, BRETT CHAPMAN, AND DANIEL PARK

Writers for The Delegate

The minority house leader had been communicating via GroupMe with fellow House members regarding the passing of bills and legislature. However, it was noted yesterday that he made demanding remarks toward his colleagues in their conversations, including threats against those party members who opposed their values.

These messages from the leader from their group chat provided by

Nationalist House members:

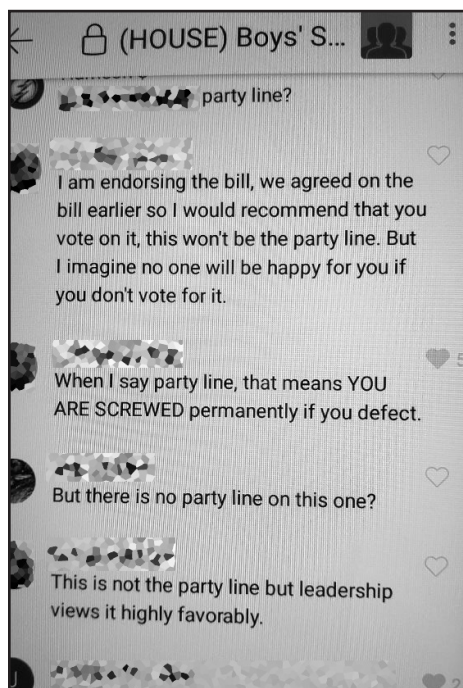

"YOU ARE SCREWED permanently if you defect".

"We agreed on the bill earlier so I would recommend you vote on it... I imagine no one will be happy for you if you don't vote"

He also a spoken testimony of his actions towards his fellow House members regarding his reactions and threats towards anyone he deemed had defected from their policies.

"I threatened to withdraw party funds from them personally," said the minority leader.

In light of these actions, there are rumors that the members of the House are debating whether or not to file a lawsuit against him in response to his demands and threats.

The Delegate is a designated forum of free speech. The print edition is published every day of Boys State by the Media Staff. It is distributed throughout Kansas Boys State for no charge. All stories pertaining to Boys State within these pages refer to a simulated society, and editorial license may have been used to report the "facts" of such stories. Letters to the editor are encouraged and accepted. Letters must be signed and the writer's county indicated to be considered for publication. All letters are subject to editing for length, legal, grammatical and factual reasons. Letters should be taken to the media office in Wefald Hall 302. To contact The Delegate, please email us at media@ksbstatesim.org.

A Dam Good Plan

BY BRETT CHAPMAN
Writer for The Delegate

Water is Earth’s most important resource; it makes up about seventy-one percent of our planet’s surface, and is necessary in our everyday lives. Water is much more than just something we drink, it is used for most everyday tasks such as showering and cooking.

As the amount of water we use everyday increases, a number of individuals agree on the importance of working on conservation in our state so that the amount of clean, usable water does not decrease too far. The Kansas Boys State’s Department of Natural Resources is suggesting a solution to increasing usage of water- but it comes at a high price.

The Department of Natural Resources is planning to create a hydroelectric dam that would be located at the intersection of the Eisenhower and Patton counties. According to a paper printed by the Department: (Cont. online)

Election Recap Corner

Winners of the Vote:
Dalton White, Federalist (Governor)
Dominic LiCastro, Federalist (Lt. Governor)
William Madden, Federalist (Attorney General)
Allen Zhang, Federalist (Secretary of State)
Colin O’Brien, Federalist (State Treasurer)
Jackson Manske, Federalist (Commissioner of insurance)

Karthik Kasarabada
City of Bley, Eisenhower County
Party: Nationalist
Values: Bipartisanship, charisma
Platform: Economy (initial low taxes but then growing taxes later, Education improvements, Abortion, Gun Control (No bans, increased safety checks)
Running Mate: CJ Pfanstiel

Photo Credit Todd Vogts

Dalton White
City of Lane, Patton County
Party: Nationalist
Party: Federalist
Values: Strong conservative, collaboration with Nationalists (Bipartisanship)
Platform: Consistent moderately low taxation, business improvement, 2nd Amendment Rights Protection, 3rd Trimester Abortion Ban,
Running Mate: Dominic LiCastro

Photo Credit Todd Vogts

A Change in Mind

BY PEYTON WEIXELMAN
Writer for The Delegate

In the last few days there have been campaign slogans, speeches, and promises being thrown at the Delegates of the Boy’s State of Kansas. Delegates have been exposed to opinions favoring as well as opposing their party and some individuals have taken different opinions into consideration. A Federalist party leader, CJ Pfanstiel, expressed to The Delegate that Nationalist Governor, Karthik Kasarabada, had convinced him to join the Nationalist party despite CJ having strong Federalist values.

“I am running for

Lt. Governor position on the Nationalist party platform, but I am still a Federalist at heart,” CJ said.

Pfanstiel recognizes that even though he is running for a Nationalist position he still remains true to his Federalist values. By understanding the Federalist goals and ideals, CJ believes he can bring those values and integrate them into (Cont. online)

NCAA v. Kansas

BY SHAWN LANGE AND JOSH KHANG
Writers for The Delegate

A trial was held yesterday accusing Kansas of actively breaking PASPA. PASPA is a nationwide act which outlawed sports betting...

Decriminalization is not Legalization

BY GRAHAM BOND AND MALACHI WATSON
Writers for The Delegate

During the Nationalist Caucus on Monday evening, there were multiple questions over whether various candidates intended to legalize certain products and increase state budgets due to tax revenue, or to simply decriminalize them...

